

The first fully illustrated catalogue of the major collection of the sculpture of Dora Gordine held at the Dorich House Museum, her former studio and home.

The collection spans a working life of over sixty years from 1924–1986. Part of the rich history of twentieth-century sculpture, this extensive collection comprises ninety-three bronzes, sixty-three plasters and numerous drawings.

An invaluable reference work for students and researchers of twentieth-century sculpture.
